The file contains a commemorative packet of eight sketches used in Vanity Fair magazine. All of the sketches are of English lawyers and judges and the dates on them range from 1869-1910. The envelope that the sketches arrived at the Archives in has the name of a local lawyer who served on the city council in the 1960s. The envelope is addressed to city hall and is postmarked 1965. The envelope was left at the information desk at city hall by an unidentified person who found them in their home.
