Methodist Pastor Dies

Several hundred persons filed mournfully past the bier of the Rev. Jesse Willis Lindsey as his body lay in state at the First Methodist Church Monday. In spite of freezing weather, sleet and snow, the church sanctuary and foyers were filled to overflowing as friends and church members gathered to pay their last respects. Death claimed the courageous pastor, Saturday, after an illness of several years.

Reared in the little East Texas town of Lafayette, he made his decision as a youth to become a minister. Lindsey began his career as a circuit preacher and pastored six churches including Irving.

During his 9 years at the First Methodist Church, he had made many devoted friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. Lee Miller, and the Rev. Tom Sterck of Ft. Worth and the Rev. C.B. Fielder of Greenville. Interment was in Crown Hill Memorial Park.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. J.D. Lindsey of Dallas; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Douglas and Miss Rachel Lindsey of Dallas; and Mrs. Henry Bower of El Paso; and two brothers, Leny Lindsey of Dallas and Hugh Lindsey of Lovelady.

Marital Troubles End With Pastor And Wife Dead

5-Year-Old Girl Sees Shootings

A verdict of murder and suicide was ruled in the double shooting Wednesday morning that took the lives of Mrs. and Mrs. L. Mangum, 217 Cason Street in North Irving.

The only witness to the shooting was Billie Jan Henderson, five-year-old grand daughter of the dead couple, who told police that "Grandma came in and shot grandpa" and then went into the bedroom and down on the bed she walked through.

Irving officers: Sgt. Paul Barger and Phil Rettom, who arrived on the scene about 9:45 a.m., found Mrs. Mangum, 54, in bed dead in the living room floor. Mangum, 50-year-old carpenter and minister at the First A.M.E. church, was found in the bedroom still holding a .22 caliber automatic pistol. Mangum was alive when officers arrived.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Parkland Hospital.

In recreating the shooting, Irving Police Chief Charles Wragg told police that his brother apparently shot his wife once in the temple and once in the neck before firing near his own temple.

"While Mangum's brother was the suicide victim, held a .22 caliber pistol and police shot his brother had been dependent since separation from his wife about two weeks ago. Mrs. Mangum was suing the minister for divorce.

A suicide note was found in the living room of the small white house in the Irving neighborhood.

In part: "It's not easy to be driven from the place you call home."

The dead minister had written that the couple's separation meant "15 years of sweat and blood down the drain," and that he had "wanted to live there until the Lord wanted to take me,"

Justice of the Peace Glen McDevitt ruled murder and suicide in the Wednesday morning shootings.

Funeral services for the dead couple are pending at Black's Funeral Home.
Irate Husband Kills Wife's Sweetheart in Parked Car

Virgil Ralph Ensey was released from the County Jail Tuesday on a $2,500 bond, a comparatively small bond involving a murder charge.

Ensey was charged with the slaying of his wife's alleged lover, George Edward Martin, 27.

Martin died from gunshot wounds in the abdomen, several hours after Ensey caught the two together in a parked car on Scotland Drive near the Ensey home at 2504 Newton Circle.

The suspect, who works the nightshift at Gaylord Container Company, told Irving Police Chief C.H. Wiersmik that he had called home Monday night and the operator told him his phone was off the hook.

He said he went home and found his five children asleep and the phone off the hook. He noticed Martin's parked car in the next street and got a .38 caliber automatic pistol.

He walked up to the driver's side and kept firing until the pistol jammed, Ensey told police.

Joyce Bsey, 29, the suspect's wife, ran home and called an ambulance. Before the ambulance arrived, she got into Martin's car and drove the dying man to Parkland Hospital. She admitted in a signed statement to Chief Wiersmik that she had been going with Martin for the past six months.

Martin, who lived in Carrollton, was the father of two children. He also worked at Gaylord Container Company on the day shift.

The Enseys had been having "martial troubles" over Martin, and Mrs. Ensey had promised her husband only a week ago that she would not see Martin again.

Ensey said he had warned Martin to stay away from his wife and quoted Martin as saying: "Oh, the bastards!"

Rev. L.B. Harris was to officiate. Interment was to be in Hilltop Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Audrey Martin; a son, George; a daughter, Dianna; mother, Mrs. Helen Martin of Dallas; brothers, Bill and Clyde Martin; grandparents, Mr. & Mrs. Harry Poston.
Services For Martin Are Held

Funeral services were held Tuesday for John L. Martin, 33, of 1508 Bradford, who died Saturday night after being hospitalized with a heart attack.

Officiating for the services in the First Baptist church was the pastor, Rev. Henry Kinkeade.

Martin had been employed by Atlantic Refining Co. for ten years as an engineer. Late last year he went to Venezuela for a brief tour of duty with his company.

A graduate of Paschal High school in Fort Worth and of Georgia Tech where he received a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering and then a master's degree in the same field, Martin in 1955 won the American Institute of Metallurgical Engineers Ferguson award for the best technical paper.

At Georgia Tech he was a member of the Society of Geophysical Engineers.

Later he joined the Georgia Tech Alumni club and the International Radio Engineers club.

Active in church work, Martin had served as superintendent of a Sunday School department.

Truck Driver Dies
In Grinding Crash

Cleofas Olmos, 48, died Tuesday at 5:20 PM of injuries received in a grinding two-car collision Monday just before noon.

The accident occurred at "Loop" 12 and Irving Blvd. Olmos, who lived at 2843 Lincoln, Ft. Worth, was also taken to Parkland. The cab of the truck was virtually demolished. Following the collision with the passenger car, the truck swerved off the road and smashed into some trees and a ditch. It knocked over a fence.

The truck was traveling north, according to the police report, when it was in collision with a 1958 Pontiac making a left turn. The passenger in the car was traveling south. Olmos received severe internal injuries and a spinal injury. Police Chief Wrzlaska said that he never regained consciousness.

There are two fatalities this year within the city limits of Irving. Last year, at the intersection of N.Collinom and Irving Blvd. a driver was killed and a child was injured. This year's second fatality occurred at the intersection of Ophelia and N.Collinom.

Drivers of the car were Cleofas Olmos and his passenger, a 15-year-old girl. Olmos was wearing a seat belt, while the girl was not.
