

Man Found Dead; One Paralyzed

GREENVILLE (UPI) --The Department of Public Safety disclosed Saturday that two Greenville men were found in a car Friday on the outskirts of town--one dead and the other mysteriously paralyzed from the waist down.

Texas Ranger Bob Badgett said the dead man was identified as Hubert Lavon Newman. The paralyzed man was identified as Elmer Long, 50.

A woman who said she spent the night in the car with the two men told police who they were. The woman, Frances Higgins, 25, of Greenville, said she was on a drinking party with the men when they decided to go to sleep.

She told police when she awoke the next morning Newman was dead and Long was paralyzed. She said she walked to a farm house and telephoned police.

Badgett said Newman's stomach contents were sent to the Department of Public Safety in Austin for analysis.

Nycum Succumbs To Heart Attack

Funeral services were held Tuesday in the Leach Chapel for Thomas F. Nycum, owner and publisher of the Irving Herald from 1946 to 1956. Rev. Robert S. McKee and Rev. Robin D. Moffat officiated at the service. Burial was in Oak Grove Memorial Park.

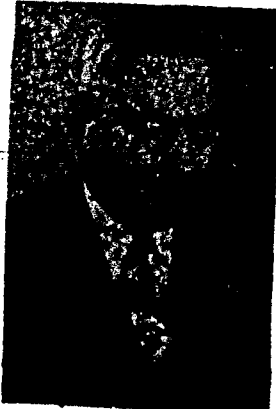

Nycum, a native of Waxahachie, Ellis County, was a graduate of Trinity University in Waxahachie. He died in his home Monday after a heart attack.

He was 59 years old and a newspaperman for 30 years. Nycum began work for the Herald in 1932 and bought it from his father-in-law the late Jim S. Hair, in 1946. The Herald, established in 1902, was Irving's first newspaper. Formerly a weekly and semi-weekly publication, it was publishing daily when he sold it in 1956. After changing hands several times the Herald was consolidated with the Irving News, published by Reporter Publishing Co.

After selling the Herald, Nycum established the Community Press, an Oak Cliff newspaper, and published it until four years ago. He continued a printing operation under the same name until last year. He recently worked as a printer for the Houston

Chronicle.

He was a member of the Texas Press Assn., the Irving Lions Club and was an elder in the First Presbyterian
