Dr. Helen Lynn Gilbert
Richardson doctor murdered in Irving

A 49-year-old murder suspect remained in Irving City Jail Saturday morning in connection with the shooting death of a 31-year-old Richardson doctor at an Irving residence.

Dr. Helen Lynn Gilbert, who recently hired a full-time bodyguard for protection, was pronounced dead about 8:36 p.m. Friday at the home of friends.

The suspect was arrested about midnight Friday at the Howard Johnson's restaurant at 10323 N. Central Expressway in Dallas.

As of Saturday morning, no bond had been set for the suspect.

The doctor, who had been staying with friends in the 700 block of West Lynn Dr., was shot twice with a handgun in the bathroom of the home, police said.

The gunman apparently entered the home through an unlocked front door while the friends watched TV, struggled with the victim and shot her, police said. Before he escaped, police said, the gunman exchanged several shots with the bodyguard, but neither man was injured.
