Irving man drowns in backyard pool

A 60-year-old Irving man drowned after he apparently fainted and fell into his swimming pool Sunday afternoon, Irving Police Department officials said.

Kertis P. Kuhlman, 1913 Crockett Circle Drive, was checking the chlorine level in his pool about 1 p.m. when he unexplainably fell into the pool and drowned, police said.

Investigators said they were told Kuhlman had been having medical problems and possibly fainted and then collapsed into the pool.

Man dies of stroke, not drowning

An autopsy has revealed that a 60-year-old Irving man died from a massive stroke instead of drowning in his pool as originally thought Sunday, police said.

The body of Kertis P. Kuhlman, 1913 Crockett Circle Drive, was found floating in his pool by his wife Sunday afternoon.

Police originally reported that Kuhlman had apparently fainted and fell into the pool.

However, medical examiners determined Monday that Kuhlman had instead suffered a massive stroke and was dead before he entered the water, police said.
