Man held in death of mother

By LEE GRANT
Daily News Staff

A family squabble turned deadly Sunday and ended with a 40-year-old Irving woman dead and her teenage son in jail, police reported.

Katie Hicks' bludgeoned body was discovered wrapped in bed-sheets and laying in the courtyard of the Windridge apartments, 2343 North MacArthur Blvd., around 5:40 a.m. Sunday, police said.

Inside Hicks' apartment investigators found Hicks' son, 18-year-old Castorian Kirby, sitting on a couch, crime scene investigators said, adding that it appeared obvious that Hicks was beaten to death in the apartment and her lifeless body then carried out onto the courtyard.

The weapon believed used to kill Hicks was found lying on the floor underneath the couch where Kirby had been sitting, said Criminal Investigation Division Capt. David Hanks.

Investigators took Kirby to the police department, where under further questioning Kirby confessed to killing his mother, Hanks said.

Kirby told investigators that his mother was "on his back" for refusing living at home and refusing to find a job. His mother had called him "worthless" and the argument continued to escalate, police said.

Hicks eventually went to bed while Kirby stayed up to watch television, police said. Police said Hicks was possibly asleep when Kirby entered her bedroom and struck her repeatedly with an undisclosed blunt instrument, police said.

An anonymous caller telephoned the Irving Police Department at 5:31 a.m. and told investigators they would find the woman's body in the courtyard. Investigators spent Monday replaying the caller's taped conversation to determine if it was actually Kirby who placed the call.

Don Fleming, manager of the Windridge apartments, said news of his tenant's death shocked him.

"This came as a big surprise to us. She was a very nice woman and a very good tenant. She always paid her rent on time and we never had any disturbance calls concerning her apartment," he said.

Hicks had lived in the apartment
for about two years, Fleming said.
The manager added he was uncertain whether Kirby had stayed with his mother in the apartment the entire time.

Investigators said that from talking with Kirby they learned the teenager came and went from the apartment instead of living with his mother on a permanent basis.
