Man seeks information on the killer of friend

By LEE GRANT
Daily News Staff

A friend of an Irving firefighter killed this week by a hit-and-run driver has posted a $5,000 reward for information which leads to the arrest of the motorist.

Don Ridlen said he decided to offer the reward as an attempt to ferret out the identity of the pickup truck driver who killed Wendell Larry McCluer.

"I had known McCluer for many years through the fire department. He was a friend of mine and a hell of a nice guy. When this happened it really broke me up," Ridlen said.

McCluer was off-duty around 5:30 a.m. Monday when he stopped his vehicle to on Interstate 635 to help a stranded motorist. He and another motorist were pushing the disabled car off the interstate when a pickup truck struck him and Phillip Martin.

McCluer died a short time later at Baylor Medical Center. Meanwhile, Martin remains in serious condition.

Ridlen compared McCluer's death to that of Dallas police officer John Chase who was gunned down Jan. 23.

"What that driver did was nothing more than willful murder. It was just as if the person had walked up and put a gun to McCluer's head," he said.

Ridlen added given the time of day and the location of the accident it was difficult to believe no one saw the truck driver.

He noted McCluer and Martin had stopped to help a driver who had been involved in an accident. Therefore, Ridlen argued it was safe to assume the majority of the surrounding traffic had probably slowed down.

For this reason Ridlen decided to offer a reward in hopes a witness will step forward and provide vital information to Dallas police.

"I'm not a rich man, but I can't think of a better way to spend my money," Ridlen said.

Anyone with information about the accident should contact the Dallas Police Department at 670-5817.

2 kids killed in fire

By LEE GRANT
Daily News Staff

Fire claimed the lives of two children trapped inside their 2145 Spokane Street home late Monday night.

Police identified the two dead children as Stanley Miksza, 14, and his younger brother, 11-year-old Marshall Miksza.

A passerby spotted flames shooting from the house around 11:15 p.m. The passerby rushed to a neighboring house and alerted the occupants of the fire, Irving Fire Marshal Ken Lewallen said.

"When the firefighters arrived the house was fully involved and the roof was collapsing above a rear bedroom," Lewallen said. "The fire started in a back bedroom, then rolled out a window and caught the eaves on fire. The fire then spread to the rafters."

Neighbors told firefighters they were afraid children were inside the house, but it was already too late for any hope of a successful rescue.

As firefighters worked their way through the burning house they found the lifeless body of Marshall Miksza lying face down inside the closet doorway of the master bedroom.

Preliminary reports indicated the 11-year-old died of smoke inhalation.

"It appeared as though the 11-year-old was trying to escape from the house, and possibly became disoriented from the smoke and heat," Lewallen said.

Meanwhile, it appeared Stanley Miksza had been asleep when the fire started and was unaware of the danger until the flames had already trapped him.

Firefighters found the badly burned teen-ager in the northwest bedroom where the roof had collapsed on top of him. The teen-ager was lying against his bed facing the bedroom door.

The children's mother was at work when officials notified her of the tragedy.

Lewallen rummaged through the wreckage in search of clues to the origin of the fire, but by 3 a.m. the cause remained undetermined.

He noted that his preliminary inspection found no indications of a possible electrical short. A kerosene heater was found in one room of the house, but Lewallen said he determined that it was not the cause of the fire.

A smoke detector was mounted in an L-shaped hallway, but Lewallen said he was uncertain whether it was working properly at the time of the fire. He added he was also unsure of whether the children would have been able to hear the smoke detector in their bedrooms.

Lewallen said he planned to resume his investigation of the fire today.

The family's two pet dogs also died in the fire, as firefighters found one pet near each of the children.

Damage to the house and contents was estimated at $75,000 Lewallen said.
