Shooting victim, 19, upgraded to serious

A 19-year-old Irving woman shot three times Tuesday by her estranged husband has been upgraded from critical to serious condition, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Rachael Granados, who underwent surgery at Parkland Memorial Hospital, was shot once in the chin and once in the arm, police said. Officials declined to disclose the location of the third wound.

Granados was working at Schlotzsky's, 2674 N. Belt Line Road, when her estranged husband, Renna Granados, entered the business and accompanied her into the office to talk, police said. While there, he shot her three times, police said.

After shooting his wife, Renna Granados, 21, went to the door of his in-laws' apartment and shot himself, police said. He later died at Parkland from a gunshot wound to his head, according to authorities.

Woman shot by husband recovering

An Irving woman shot last week by her estranged husband, who then killed himself, is improving steadily, but still faces surgery, her brother said last week.

Rachel Granados was shot once in the head, once in the chin and once in the arm, according to authorities.

One bullet remains lodged in her head, said her brother, Rodolfo Martinez, who is married to the mother of Granados' late husband.

"They're going to leave it (in her head)." Martinez said.

Mrs. Granados swallowed the bullet that pierced her chin and broke a couple of her teeth, he said.

One of the bullets also shattered her left eardrum, leaving her deaf in that ear, he said. It also damaged her tear duct, making it hard for her right eye to retain moisture, he said.

Mrs. Granados will undergo surgery for those two problems, Martinez said.

She'd Parkland Memorial Hospital, where her condition has improved from critical to fair, according to a hospital spokesman.

Mrs. Granados, who police have learned is 29, rather than 19 as they first were told, was working at Schlotzsky's, 2674 N. Belt Line Road, when her estranged husband, Renna, entered the business and accompanied her into the office to talk, police said.

While they were in the office, he shot her three times, police said.

After shooting her, the 21-year-old Renna Granados went to the door of Martinez's home and shot himself in the head, police said. He later died at Parkland.

Man shoots wife, then kills himself

After shooting his estranged wife three times at her business late Tuesday, a 21-year-old Irving man went to the door of his in-laws' apartment and fatally shot himself while the Irving Police Department's tactical team stood surveillance nearby, police said.

Renna Granados died at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday while hooked up to life-support systems, police said. His wife, 19-year-old Rachael Granados, was in critical condition Wednesday after surgery at Parkland Memorial Hospital. She was shot once in the chin, once in the arm and once in an unknown location, police said.

Mrs. Granados was at work at Schlotzsky's, 2674 N. Belt Line Road, when her estranged husband entered the business about 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and accompanied her into the office to talk, police said. While there, he shot her three times and fled the scene, according to police.

Two Irving detectives working in the area heard the call for patrol units and were the first to arrive on the scene, where they found Mrs. Granados conscious. She told them that her husband had shot her and that he might be on his way to her parents' apartment in the 700 block of South Story Road, police said.

The tactical team was sent to the parents' and, upon finding out that they had not heard from their son-in-law, set up surveillance. Shortly after, police said, Granados rounded the corner of the building, walked a short distance, put a gun to his head and fired; he fell in front of his in-laws' door.

Police said Granados probably was not aware that the tactical team was in the area.
