Shooting ruled murder

By MIKE COPPOCK
News Staff Writer

Westbrook, who at the time resided in the 1100 block of Chamberlain Street, is now at large.

Charges were filed after lab results from the murder scene came back to Irving police last week, said IPD investigator Randall Johnson.

Coomer, a Garland resident, was at the Westbrook home when he was shot in the chest, police said in an earlier report. Westbrook had told police she was about to cook a meal for Coomer when she walked into her living room. According to her, Coomer handed her the gun and told her to be careful as she put it away because it was loaded.

Westbrook told investigators that she reached for the butt of the gun and it went off, striking Coomer in the chest. Westbrook called 911 and Coomer was taken to The Irving Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Westbrook told police she and Coomer had been dating for eight years.

Irving police contacted Garland authorities so Coomer's wife could be notified of the shooting. Coomer's wife told Garland police she thought he had been in Dallas playing pool.

Irving investigators kept the case open because the question of how the gun went off without the trigger being pulled was never made clear in Westbrook's statements, according to police.

Irving man held after Texas-OU killing

A 19-year-old Irving man was arrested by Dallas police Monday for the murder of Thomas Justin Crump, 19, of Carrollton during Friday night's rally leading up the Texas-Oklahoma University football game.

The incident occurred at 11:10 p.m. in the 600 block of Commerce Street in Dallas' West End. A new-model, blue Ford Probe bumped the back end of a pickup, police said, and the driver of the pickup got out to discuss the incident.

It was at that point that the passenger in the Probe, whom police believe to be the Irving resident, fired the shot that fatally wounded Crump, police said.

Crump was a passenger in the pickup.

"We had witnesses with information about the car and, through that, we tracked down the suspect," Dallas homicide Sgt. R.E. Martin said.

Martin said the Probe belonged to a second Irving resident.

There was no indication, Martin said, that Crump or anyone with him was carrying a weapon.

"Obviously, it was not the only murder that night, but we believe it is the first one during the Texas-OU rally in recent memory," Martin said.

Murder charges are pending.

"I can't disclose information about the physical evidence in the case," Martin said. "All I can say is that the victim was killed with a small-caliber handgun."

Irving police reports indicated, however, that a handgun was recovered as well.

Martin said that, although he does not have a complete record on the suspect, there is nothing to indicate he had been involved with any prior felonies.

Red Camaro sought in SH-183 shooting

Police call early-morning murder a drive-by

By REGINA STEFFEN
News Staff Writer

The shooting death of 45-year-old Jose Miguel Cruz at 4 a.m. Friday on State Highway 183 has been ruled a drive-by shooting by police, who are looking for the occupants of a red Camaro seen in the area.

Cruz was killed by a single shot to the left side of his neck as he drove west near the Carl Road exit.

Police log

He was shot as he drove, but do not believe the incident was "gang-related."

"One of Cruz's co-workers was driving two cars behind him on the freeway," Gomez said. "He said there was an orange Volkswagen on his way home from his job as a mechanic at Love Field.

Irving police had said that the initial investigation did not indicate the murder was a drive-by.

Now, police spokeswoman Syd-ney Gomez said, detectives handling the case do believe Cruz was shot as he drove, but do not believe the incident was "gang-related."

Shooting: Police seek cars

Beetle in front of him, and behind Cruz, when Cruz pulled off the road. He also said there was a red Camaro riding next to Cruz just before Cruz pulled off the road."

With the vehicle information received from witnesses over the weekend, police are looking for the occupants of the two cars.

The Camaro, which witnesses said had two occupants, was described as between a 1974 and 1981 model and very dirty, Gomez said.

"The people in the Camaro are being sought as suspects in the shooting," Gomez said.

Investigators do not yet have a motive in Cruz’s killing, she added.

The people in the orange Volkswagen Beetle are being sought as witnesses to the shooting, Gomez said.

"We hope the people in the VW will call us," she said.

Cruz’s co-worker could tell police very little about either vehicle.

"There is very little known about the VW. We don’t know how many people were in the car; we don’t know what year it was. It’s possible that the people who were in it didn’t even realize what they saw," Gomez said.

Police ask anyone who might have seen the red Camaro with the two occupants or the VW Beetle to call detectives at 721-2535.

Investigators speculate that Cruz was shot, pulled or swerved to the shoulder and got out of his truck’s cab in an attempt to get help, Gomez said.

When emergency workers arrived, Cruz was face down behind his black 1990 GMC Sierra pickup. Attempts to revive him by witnesses and paramedics were futile.

The caliber of the bullet that struck and killed Cruz is not being released, although police have said it was fired from a handgun.

Cruz, a Fort Worth resident, was the 14th person to be murdered in Irving this year. His death came four days after a shooting at the Irving Inn, where 19-year-old Oswaldo Ernesto Salmeron of Irving was killed by a single gunshot to the back of the head.

There was a delay in positively identifying Salmeron because he used several aliases and had no identification at the time he was found, police said.

Police are expected to file murder charges at large on a 20-year-old man in that case. The suspect’s last known address is Irving, but police believe he is now in Mexico.
Gordon Douglas Culpepper
