Longtime resident Bing Wehlander dies

By CHRIS HART
News Staff Writer

Erling O. “Bing” Wehlander, an Irving appointee to the Dallas Area Rapid Transit board of directors and longtime civic helping hand, died Sunday of cancer complications. He was 69.

Wehlander, who was diagnosed with colon cancer in the summer of 1991, died at The Irving Hospital late Sunday morning. Wehlander's wife, Jane, said the cancer had spread to his liver and was inoperable.

Wehlander had been taking regular chemotherapy treatment for almost two years to try to stop the spread of the disease.

Wehlander was born in Fargo, N.D., on July 7, 1923. He attended the University of Colorado, but graduated from the Air Force Institute of Technology with a degree in electrical engineering. He married Jany Rue Foster on March 2, 1946, in El Paso.

Death: DART board member remembered

Wehlander was an Air Force pilot for 26 years and retired in 1967 as a lieutenant colonel, at which time he and his family moved to Irving. After the service, he worked as an electrical engineer for LTV for 21 years before retiring.

Mayor Roy Brown, who has lived three doors down from the Wehlanders since coming to town in 1969, said Bing Wehlander was a close and valued confidant. He said Wehlander helped him over the years with problems ranging from faulty car wiring to financial investments to personal questions, and did so with a humble disposition, a quick mind and an exacting eye for detail.

As he did in 1991, Wehlander had been serving as manager of Brown's campaign for mayor.

“He and his wife were one of the first ones we met when we were building our house in Irving,” Brown said. “Bing was a good friend. He was just an excellent neighbor and all-around wonderful person.”

Brown said Wehlander served on the last three capital improvements bond committees, six years on the civil service commission, six years on the zoning board of adjustments and 5½ years on the airport liaison committee. The City Council appointed him to the DART board in 1991.

“I called on Bing many times to serve on committees and to do citizen studies,” Brown said. “And he never flinched. He was the type of person all communities need to build good and strong cities.”

Jane Wehlander said her husband simply liked serving people in whatever way he could. She said he was tireless in his dedication to making Irving a better place to live.

“He enjoyed accomplishing something,” Mrs. Wehlander said. “He felt with his knowledge he could help the city. He enjoyed doing what he did and working with people.”

Wehlander was a Mason and a member of the Republican Party.

Aside from his wife, Wehlander is survived by his sons, Ronald Wehlander of Shreveport, La., and Tommy Wehlander of Carrollton; daughter, Virginia Marroquin of Oklahoma City; brothers, Marilyn Wehlander of Fargo, Vernon Wehlander of Sun City, Calif., Wilford Wehlander of Albuquerque, N.M., and Roger Wehlander of DeLamarre, N.D.; and five grandchildren.

Services were Wednesday at the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, with the Rev. Charles Hubbard officiating. Services were arranged by Donnelly's Colonial Funeral Home.

Burial will be at 9 a.m. Thursday at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio.
