Larry Don Miller faces murder charges

By LIZABETH CARDENAS
News Staff Writer

The wife and son of an Irving resident who went on a shooting rampage Sunday showed signs of improvement Wednesday under the watchful eyes of doctors.

Leatha Miller, 25, and her infant boy, who was delivered in an emergency operation, were listed in fair condition Wednesday at Parkland Hospital. Leatha Miller’s condition was upgraded from critical on Sunday while her boy was classified as serious earlier in the week.

She was forced to deliver her son 10 weeks premature. Her 3-year-old daughter, Katrina Miller, also was listed in fair condition.

The family members sustained multiple gunshot wounds after Larry Don Miller, 29, assaulted them at his in-law’s apartment, 3318 Willow Creek Drive, with a .357 magnum.

Richard Charles Wieland, 59, the father of Leatha Miller, died from a gunshot wound to the chest.

Miller, who is currently in Irving jail under suicide watch, was charged with murder Tuesday morning. His bail was set at $250,000.

Leatha Miller and her daughter had been staying with the Wielands because the Millers were having marital difficulties, according to a statement Larry Miller gave police. In that testimony, Larry Miller said he went over to his in-laws’ apartment in anger to get his daughter because he did not want her staying with them. “One thing led to another,” he told police.

Miller said he beat on the back door of the apartment when he couldn’t gain entry. Wieland, who would not open the door, threatened to call police. But Miller kicked down the door, and shot him, he said. Then he went to the bedroom where his wife and child were sleeping and shot them, he told police. He said that he did not intend to shoot his daughter who was sleeping in a dark room.

“How much of that really took place isn’t certain, but the door is really kicked in,” said Capt. Travis Hall of the Irving Police Department. “His story has been pretty consistent, and I would say he has been cooperating.”

Police said that Larry Miller went to the in-law’s apartment earlier on Sunday and confronted them. He went back approximately 9:30 p.m. the same day.

According to police, Wieland was found in bed with a gunshot wound to the chest. He was pronounced dead at the Irving Hospital. Leatha Miller was shot twice and Katrina Miller was shot three times, suffering wounds to her leg, shoulder and buttocks.

The suspect then went back to the couple’s apartment at 2869 W. Pioneer Drive and phoned his ex-wife, telling her he wanted to...
"I think it's what you see as an extreme result of family violence. This is the most serious form it can take," Hall said. "We haven't gone back to see if there was a history of family violence. We do know that he went out there threatening the family early that morning, but they never did call the police."

Mrs. Wieland, Miller's mother-in-law, was not at the apartment during the shooting because she was working, police said.

Police recovered what they believe to be the murder weapon, a .357 magnum handgun, along with a key to Larry Miller's apartment, in some bushes near his brother's apartment, which is also in the complex where the shooting took place, Hall said. Police initially spotted Miller near that site.

Hall said Miller indicated that he had been drinking and taking prescription medication on the evening of the shootings.

The incident marks the twelfth homicide this year in Irving.

Miller is currently in the Dallas County Jail with bail set at $100,000 for murder and $50,000 for each attempted murder. Letha Ann Miller was discharged from Parkland Memorial Hospital Monday, and Katrina Miller was discharged Nov. 5. Local volunteer John Ybarra dies

John Ybarra, a dedicated community volunteer, died Friday, Aug. 5, at the age of 27.

For 15 years, Ybarra willingly offered his services at the Veterans’ Hall, an Irving bingo center used by veterans’ organizations to raise money in order to perform community services.

He worked with countless children in need, helped with the Teen Court program and was chosen as a delegate for the Boys’ State when he was a high school junior.

Around Christmas time each year, Ybarra would don a red suit to spread holiday cheer among 5,000 area children, who knew him as Santa Claus.

He volunteered his time, his effort and lent his hands in every way he could, said the hall’s owner, Charlotte Hearn.

“John had been working here for me since he was 12. This was my husband’s business. But when he died, John just filled the role of responsibility. He was just there — All the time,” she said.

Ybarra had been managing the hall since 1991.

Last spring, when a devastating tornado hit parts of Lancaster and DeSota, Ybarra once again was there, helping and comforting.

“He helped us in going out and gathering and sorting and taking and delivering supplies to the community. He worked the phone banks. He was always there, no matter what time of day or night.”

Those who knew him credit-

He is survived by his mother, Julia Botello Ybarra; sisters, Natalia Norris, Christina Ybarra and Julia Ybarra; and brother, Alfredo Ybarra, all of Irving.
