Pair dead from drug overdose

Oklahoma men injected amphetamines; third victim
discharged from hospital

By LIZABETH CARDENAS
News Staff Writer

A pre-New Year's Eve gathering proved deadly Saturday for two Oklahoma men who apparently overdosed after injecting amphetamines.

Ricky Gerald Gregory, 46, and Teddy Joe Russell, 41, both of Oklahoma, were pronounced dead at The Irving Hospital early Saturday. Another visitor from Oklahoma, Teresa Lynn Olphant, 25, also was transported to the hospital but was discharged Monday.

"It was not a party — it was more of a group of people hanging out," said Lt. Sid Fuller of the Irving Police Department. "The three of them injected themselves with amphetamines, and then they immediately went into seizures."

Gregory's niece owns a house in Irving, and the three had come from Oklahoma to visit her, Fuller said.

At 12:55 a.m. Saturday, the niece, who lives in the 900 block of Oakdale Road, called an ambulance, reporting that her guests were having seizures.

"There were several people at the house, but the three of them and the niece were the only ones up at the time," Fuller said. "Two other people were in bed, and a child was also in bed.

Police are awaiting autopsy reports to determine the cause of the deaths.

"We don't know whether the drugs were bad — the drugs could've been tainted — or it was an overdose," Fuller said.

Police were able to recover some of the amphetamines, he said.

"The drugs were seized from off of them and from the house," Fuller said.

Police are still trying to determine whether they will charge Olphant with possession of amphetamines, Fuller said.

At this point, the niece will not be charged, Fuller said. Police have not been able to link her to the possession of any drugs, he said.

Although Fuller would not characterize the amount of drugs recovered as large — there were just "a few baggies of amphetamines" — amphetamine usage in Irving is nothing new.

"Amphetamines have always been a problem in Irving," Fuller said. "Probably not more than marijuana, but amphetamines had popularity for a while — about six or seven years ago — and then it dropped. That's when cocaine became more popular. But it looks like amphetamines are coming back."

In June, 53 people were arrested in connection with a large scale methamphetamine organization that was operating in and around Dallas, including Irving.

Methamphetamines are a stronger form of amphetamines, Fuller said; both drugs are referred to as "speed."

In the June bust, approximately 37 pounds of methamphetamines were seized in addition to several firearms, handguns, long guns and chemicals used to make the drugs.

The arrests were the result of a two-year investigation by agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and officers of the Dallas Police Department. The IPD also participated in that probe for several months.

Because police are still waiting on the medical findings, they do not know whether the drugs Gregory, Russell and Olphant injected were amphetamines or metham-phetamines. Fuller said police are speculating it was amphetamines because 90 percent of the time amphetamines are the culprit.

What makes this incident so unusual is that there were two deaths and one injury at one place and one time, said David Tull, IPD public information officer.

"We have periodic overdose deaths throughout the year — sometimes with pills, sometimes with injectables like this," Tull said. "Because it was three people at the same time, it makes it much more uncommon."
