Irving man dies in Dallas crash

By STEPHEN TERRY
News Staff Writer

A 39-year-old Irving man died Monday at Methodist Medical Center in Dallas from head injuries sustained when he was thrown from his motorcycle in west Dallas July 30.

Allen Wayne Calhoun was driving a red 1982 Suzuki motorcycle without a helmet and weaving through traffic at an excessive speed in the 2400 block of Walton Walker Boulevard at about 9:20 p.m., according to Dallas police.

Witnesses told police that Calhoun attempted to pass a vehicle near the construction site of a DART HOV lane and crashed into the right back section of a black 1998 two-door Pontiac Sunfire. The east inside shoulder was blocked by barrels, and the area was not lighted at the time, according to police. Calhoun and an unidentified passenger on the motorcycle were thrown from the vehicle. The vehicle continued to travel on the highway and stopped on its right side.

The two were transported to the hospital. Calhoun was pronounced dead at 10:10 a.m. Monday. The condition of the passenger riding with Calhoun was unavailable. However, police spoke with the passenger immediately after the accident and said he “appeared to be intoxicated.” According to police reports, the passenger also said Calhoun had been drinking.

Police said they are still investigating the accident and will wait on an autopsy before commenting on Calhoun’s condition at the time of the incident.

No one else was injured in the accident, according to police reports. Calhoun was Dallas’ 90th motor-vehicle fatality of the year.

Law-enforcement officials were involved Wednesday in two shooting incidents in Irving:
1. Dallas County sheriff's deputies shot a man to whom they were trying to serve a warrant outside Farine Elementary School.
2. Irving police shot and killed a man, capping an eight-minute standoff that began when police checked a stopped car at Story Road and State Highway 183.

IPD puts 7 on leave after man is killed

Seven local police officers were placed on administrative leave following the fatal shooting of a 41-year-old Irving man on Wednesday.

The police shot and killed Charles Howard Cook about 10:54 p.m. after Cook reportedly fired at least one round from a handgun at officers in the 2500 block of State Highway 183, near Story Road behind the Border Line restaurant.

David Tull, Irving police public-information officer, said officers patrolling the area noticed Cook sitting alone in a vehicle parked at the back of the parking lot. Officers were suspicious because all nearby businesses were closed. Tull said the officers noticed Cook was armed as they approached the vehicle.

"When they first walked up, they saw he had a gun and stepped back," Tull said. "They attempted to get him to put it down and step out of the vehicle. (Cook) spoke back to them but wouldn't drop the gun."

Police: Seven on leave as death is investigated

After backup officers responded to the scene, Cook stepped out of his vehicle and initiated a verbal confrontation with the officers, police said.

"He and the officers were exchanging words," Tull said. "He was issuing verbal challenges to police. Initial indications are that there is a possibility the man was looking for police to shoot him."

About eight minutes into the incident, Cook allegedly raised a handgun and fired a shot toward officers. The officers at the scene returned gunfire, according to police reports.

"All seven officers fired at least one round," Tull said. "Cook's shot missed the officers, and none of the officers were injured."

Cook was pronounced dead at the scene.

Tull said all officers involved in the incident were placed on administrative leave, which is standard after fatal shootings. He said the shooting is being investigated.

"There are seven officers on administrative leave," Tull said. "They stay on it for a minimum of one day, and then the department works with them on how many days they think they need to take off. This type of incident can be stressful."

"The investigation will reveal what brought it to that point. Finding persons in a suspicious vehicle is normal. It is fairly routine for police to go up and talk to them. We have come up on people who just pulled off the road to sleep. Sometimes, it's a transient who has had an argument with their spouse and decided to spend a night in the car. That circumstance (Wednesday) night was in an area where all the businesses were closed."

Police said last week's standoff resulted in city's first fatality shooting involving police this year.

"It has been several years since we had a shooting where the suspect was killed," Tull said. "Deadly force is justified to protect themselves or another person. However, there are varying circumstances to go along with that. Deadly force is the highest end of the scale that you try not to get to. I understand that the police did everything to avoid that, but it didn't work out that way."

Judy Sauve

Date Of Birth: Oct-8-1951
Date Deceased: July-18-1999
    Age at Death: 48
Cause of Death: Heart Attack
Classmate City: Cedar Hill
Classmate State: TX
Classmate Country:
Survived By: Sister, Kathleen Mashburn and family of Irving and husband Chris Coppenger and step-son, Cody of Cedar Hill.

Judy lived in Irving most of her life. She played tenor saxophone in the bands of Crockett Jr. High and MacArthur. After graduation, she attended Texas Women’s University in Denton and later North Lake College where she was an honor student. Judy was amazingly bright and funny. She soaked up facts and information like a sponge and could quote scripture as well as many and better than most. She never ceased to amaze those who had the pleasure of knowing her and spending time with her. Judy had a heart of gold.
    She would literally give you the shirt off her back...or maybe out of her closet.:-) At the time of her untimely, unexpected death, she was employed by Abbott Laboratories, Diagnostic Division in Irving and worked in the Site Quality Assurance Department. Judy died only 2 short years after she had finally met and married her prince charming. She was one of my best friends of 35 years and I miss her so much. I know that if she were she here today, she would be very excited about this reunion.
