An 18-year-old Irving resident died Monday from a head injury suffered when a car driven by a 21-year-old Grand Prairie man ran over her Sunday evening.

Parisa Rad was pronounced dead at 11:15 Monday morning, 16 hours after a skateboarding stunt turned tragic.

According to Sgt. Eric Hansen, the Grand Prairie police department’s investigating officer, Rad and Joseph Eddric Escamilla, 19 of Irving, were skateboarding on the 200 block of Cedar Drive at about 7:15 p.m. Sunday when they died.

No charges are expected to be filed against Anderson, although Grand Prairie police were still discussing the accident with the Dallas County District Attorney's office late Tuesday afternoon.

Accident: Irving woman run over

Rad lost her balance and fell under the Jeep. The Jeep, which was traveling at “a slow speed,” according to the police report, ran over Rad with a rear tire, delivering a blow to her head.

Rad was airlifted to Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas.

Several residents of the southern Grand Prairie neighborhood said they did not know any of the three involved in the accident and that they did not live in the neighborhood.

Escamilla, who identified himself as Rad’s boyfriend, told...
