Rites Monday for Walter R. Harvey Jr.

08/12/2001
Services for Walter R. Harvey Jr., former owner and operator of Harvey's Barbecue Pit in Irving, will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Brown's Memorial Funeral Home Chapel, 707 N. MacArthur Blvd.

Mr. Harvey, 78, died Thursday at Ashford Hall Nursing Home in Irving.

Harvey's Barbecue Pit was open from 1955 until June.

Mr. Harvey was born April 16, 1923, in Dallas and graduated from Irving High School, where he played football.

He served in the Navy during World War II doing general maintenance on a hospital ship in the Pacific Islands. After the war, he married his high school sweetheart, Dorothy Dorety, and became a DuPont paint salesman.

In 1955, Mr. Harvey decided he wanted to own his own business. With practice on his backyard smoker, some family recipes and an inheritance from an aunt, he opened Harvey's.

People thought he was crazy to leave a good job with DuPont to open a barbecue pit, said his daughter, Kary Fieseler.

But since the naysaying, three generations of Harveys have worked at the pit and four generations of families have dined there.

Mr. Harvey was an award-winning whittler, earning blue ribbons at the Texas State Fair. He whittled cowboys, caricatures and such large scenes as a quilting bee and a general store. Many of his creations were displayed at the pit.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey retired in 1980 and sold the pit to their son, Walter R. Harvey III. In their retirement, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey enjoyed taking their Winnebago and boat for crappie fishing at Lake Palestine and Lake Fork.

While his family ran the pit, Mr. Harvey visited with customers who had come by his "whittling pen," a room added onto the restaurant.

The Harvey family had a silent auction and sold many of the antiques and wood creations displayed in the pit.

"The restaurant was like a museum," Ms. Fieseler said. "This way people got to take a piece of Harvey's home with them."

The pit's first location was at Irving Boulevard and Loop 12, the second at Irving Boulevard and Britain, and the third at Grauwyler and Loop 12. The restaurant occupied its final location, a church building built in the early 1900s at Grauwyler and Union Bower, from 1967 until its closing.

Mr. Harvey was preceded in death by his wife, Dorothy. In addition...
