WAXAHACHIE (CBSDFW.COM/AP) - A fire at the site of the springtime Scarborough

Renaissance Faire in Waxahachie has left one person dead and two firefighters injured. The incident happened at about 10:00 p.m. on Monday night.

Several people live on the festival site's property. The fire started in a building where one of the groundskeepers was staying. When firefighters arrived on the scene, they tried to locate all of those workers, but the groundskeeper could not be found.

According to the Ellis County Sheriff's Office, it took about 40 firefighters four hours to put out the blaze, which ultimately burned seven structures. The missing groundskeeper was located in one of those structures as crews tried to extinguish the flames. He could not be saved. "It took a while to get the fire cooled down enough to even be able to go in and do any searching," explained Lt. James Sauter. "Once they got it to that point, it didn't take but five minutes before we located him."
