DEMARCO MORALES
MORALES DeMarco Esteban Morales - DeMarco was a shy-at-first kind of kid, but once he opened up, you found out that he had the most curious of questions. He could be talking to you about history one minute, dinosaurs the next, maybe science after that. Every time you talked to him, you could see his growth and learning. He was a little sponge! His mind was everywhere at once and yet he found it so easy to express himself. Every photograph of him seems to have a different expression! In these ways, he was the most artistic of artistic types. He had his own, unique way of viewing the world and he was starting to define his favorite mediums and subjects. Barely 11 years old, but his viewpoints were fully-developed thoughts that made you wonder what he was going to be like when he grew up. Perhaps his most striking trait, however, was his capacity for love. He loved with every fiber of his being... his father, his mother, his sister and his entire family. He was so young and while we were trying to teach him all about life, he was showing us how to love. He is joined in passing by his grandpa Nacho, sister Brenda and cousin Jassmine. He is survived by his Father Marcos, Calderon Family, Moreno Family, Morales-Cardoso Family, Mother Claudia, uncles Lupe and Ken, aunts Brenda, Mireya and Tina, and countless other family and friends. DeMarco: We will never forget your true smile and loving heart. Brenda Raquel Morales - Brenda had gifts from both of her parents that she was just learning to use. She had runner’s legs and a competitive spirit like her father. Only 12 but could burn up the track and the basketball court! She was musically inclined like her mother. She could play clarinet and percussion so effortlessly. She made all those things look easy, but the truth is that she worked very hard at practice, put her heart and soul into everything she did. She wanted to impress her parents and family, so she tried her best and gave it her best shot. She celebrated when she did well, and she knew it was all about having fun, not just about winning. She let us cheer and comfort her, she gave us that joy, the opportunity to come together as a family to enjoy her exploits and plenty of laughs along the way. Music and sports she did sometimes, but she always loved her brother and had a very motherly instinct. Sometimes she’d chew him out and sometimes she’d love on him, but she never let him down. She is joined in passing by her grandpa Nacho, brother DeMarco and cousin Jassmine. She is survived by her Father Marcos, Calderon Family, Moreno Family, Morales-Cardoso Family, Mother Claudia, uncles Lupe and Ken, aunts Brenda, Mireya and Tina, and countless other family and friends. Brenda: We are so proud of you. Watch over us now, like you watched over your brother here.

Trula June Morrison
(November 6, 1923 - February 23, 2012)

Trula June Mullins Cooper Morrison

A true Steel Magnolia. Strong and soft, Stubborn and sweet. She cared for those in need. Was firm in her convictions, And loved with a fierce abundance and grace. Like a magnolia blossom, She was, and is, eternally beautiful. If you take the time to listen with your heart, You might just be graced with a smidgen of her wisdom, And granted a hint of that brilliant smile, And perhaps a knowing, gentle laugh.

Irving resident Trula June Morrison, 88, passed away February 23, 2012 in a Dallas hospital. She was born on November 6, 1923 in Clintwood, Virginia to Vernon and Grace Fleming Mullins.

The widow of Donald M. Cooper of Glouster, Ohio and Harold C. Morrison of Lafayette, Tennessee, she was also preceded in death by her parents, three brothers, Shirley Mullins of Kingsport, Ervin Mullins of Clintwood, and Johnny Mullins of Clintwood, and a sister, Laura Sue Dean of Kingsport. She is survived in death by daughters, Donna Frano of Irving, Texas and Kitty Cooper of Astatula, Florida; son Hal Morrison and wife Jana of Celina, Texas; grandchildren Chris Green and wife Kelly, Roberto Frano and wife Jennifer, Preston Furtick and wife Morgan, Kathrin Basham and husband Keylan, and Parker Furtick; four great-grandchildren Dylan Green, Nicholas Frano, Nathan and Dylan Furtick; brother Elwood Mullins of Clintwood and sister Kathleen Morgan of Kingport.

Trula was a coal-miner's daughter who lived through the Great Depression with fond memories of soup beans and corn bread. She was so skilled at basketball that she received a scholarship, but could not accept it because her hand-me-down dungarees would not suffice for a college wardrobe. But she played professionally for the FBI basketball team during the war before she married and decided to focus her energy and drive on being a homemaker and the very best mother any child could ask for. She was also the best aunt, cousin, grandmother, second cousin, friend, and great-grandmother anyone could want, beloved by the children and animals who flocked to her for unconditional love and gentle guidance -- and the neighbors, doctors, friends and relatives who crowded up for some of her delicious candy and amazing chocolate sheet cake. Trula loved listening to her country music, golfing for as long as her body would let her, sewing for as long as her fingers could manage, watching Nascar and NCIS and old movies, and caring for the innumerable dogs she loved throughout her lifetime. She was stubborn and unbelievably strong, surviving two husbands, a multitude of surgeries, and the loss of far too many who were dear to her over the years. In spite of pain and advancing illness, she smiled and laughed to the very end. She will always and forever be our Trula June, our Steel Magnolia.

A memorial celebrating her life is set for Saturday, March 3, 2012 at 4 pm in Donnelly’s Colonial Funeral Home, 606 West Airport Freeway, Irving, Texas 75062 (972-579-1313). In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Lewy Body Dementia Association, 912 Killian Hill Road, S.W., Lilburn, GA 30047 or online at www.lbda.org/go/donate.

Another memorial celebrating her life will be held in Clintwood, Virginia in late April for family and friends. Details will be announced as they become available.
