Historical Sketch

In 1988 the Irving Heritage Society commissioned a general history book of Irving, Texas. Windsor Publications of Northridge, California, was selected to produce this history book, which resulted in a 144-page book written by Joseph Rice entitled Irving: A Texas Odyssey, with one chapter, "Partners in Progress," written by Mike Howard.

Irving: A Texas Odyssey chronicles the founding and development of the City of Irving, as well as the people who founded the town and settled here. In addition to text, the book contains over 125 photographs, maps, and illustrations. These images were obtained from various citizens of Irving. The photographs, some of which date back to the 19th century, include images of the founders, their family members, and their descendants.

The author, Joseph Rice, used a variety of sources in his research to produce this history of Irving, Texas. In addition to traditional research sources such as published books, articles, and newspaper articles, the author also used unpublished materials, many of which were written by the founders or their descendants. Oral history also played an important part in the acquisition of information used to write Irving's history.

Joseph Rice was an advertising and public relations director of Cable & Connector Warehouse, Inc., of Irving, Texas, when he was commissioned by the Irving Heritage Society to write Irving: A Texas Odyssey. He has also held several faculty and administrative positions, including director of university relations at the University of Dallas. Rice, a native of Texas, holds Bachelor's and Master's Degrees in English from the University of Texas—El Paso, and received his Ph.D. in English from the University of Oregon.

In addition to Irving: A Texas Odyssey, Rice edited a work on Louisiana folklife entitled Legacy, and co-authored a history of the Irving Rotary Club.

Series Description

Arranged by subject. The negatives are numbered consecutively with the letter "N" designating "negative." Subjects are: structures, people and structures, people, groups of people, landscapes, and documents and maps of and about Irving, Texas, used for the publication of Irving: A Texas Odyssey.

Series II. Photographs, 1P-126P. 6 folders.

Arranged by subject and numerical order. The photographs are numbered to coincide with the numbered negatives in Series I. Photographs are designated by a "P" following the number. Oversized prints are housed separately in three folders.

Series III. Documents and Research Sources. 6 folders.

Arranged by subject. Photograph release forms, correspondence, research material, and photo control logs.

Scope and Content Note

The bulk of this collection consists of negatives and photographs, many used in the book, Irving: A Texas Odyssey. Photo control logs accompany some of these negatives and photographs and contain descriptions of the images and captions used in the book to describe and identify structures, people, and groups of people. In addition to descriptive information, these logs also contain information pertaining to credit and restrictions on use of images. There are many photo control logs that do not have corresponding photos in the collection. These photo control logs are part of series three.

Also included in this collection are documents and letters related to the publishing of this book. Among these documents are letters requesting visual materials; a picture research contract between Windsor Publications and Janet Romanyshyn and Edith Yonan; consent forms to use photographs; research material; and maps.

This collection was formed from the process of gathering images and sources used to produce Irving: A Texas Odyssey. As a result, the materials found in this collection come from a variety of sources, making this collection one that documents the process of publishing a book on local history, as well as being a useful source for research on local history.

This collection is arranged in three series. These series are housed in twenty-six folders in one legal size manuscript box and one oversize box containing three folders, for a total of .65 linear feet.

Series I contains negatives numbered 1N-106N ("N" designates "negative"), which are arranged by subject. Page numbers appearing at the end of some entries indicate their location in the book Irving: A Texas Odyssey. Photo control logs that give descriptions of the images, captions, credit, and any existing restrictions accompany some negatives.

Series II contains photographs numbered 1P-126P (“P” designates “photographs”). The photographs are arranged by subject, and the photos’ numbers correspond to the numbered negatives. Page numbers appearing in some entries indicate the photos’ location in Irving: A Texas Odyssey. Gaps in numbers between photos are the result of having no prints present that match the corresponding negatives. Oversized proof sheets are housed in a separate box.

Series III contains correspondence, contracts, consent forms, historical sketches, and maps used in the production of Irving: A Texas Odyssey. Included in this series are unmatched photo control logs. These are control logs from Windsor Publications, Inc., bearing descriptions and captions for images that were collected for the book but are not in the collection.

The photo control logs are divided into seven folders. Three of the folders are titled by media type; prints, slides, and transparencies. The photo control logs in these folders do not match with any photos, slides, or transparencies in this collection. Three of the remaining four folders contain photo control logs that match to photos or slides found in other collections in the Archives. The remaining folder contains photo control logs for photos that were donated for one-time use in the book and returned to the owners.
